We use Google Analytics-cookies on our website and do not use any other Google services in combination with the Google Analytics-cookies.

We will only process information about you when we have a lawful reason to do so. When we process your information, we rely upon one of the following lawful reasons:

- To comply with a legal obligation;

- To perform a contract with you or to take steps at your request before entering into a contract with you;
- To protect your vital interests or those of another individual;
- When it is in our legitimate interests or those of another third party, providing that these interests are not overridden by your own interests and rights; and
- With your consent.

Special categories of personal data

Special categories of personal data are a category of information that is more sensitive and requires greater protection. Some of the information we process may fall into this category. It is unlawful for organisations to process this type of information unless an additional legal condition applies.

With your explicit consent, we will review any information you provide and if required we will contact you for further information to enable us to understand how to meet your needs and to complete any required risk assessments. In most cases, we will only retain this information for six months after the event, unless there is another lawful reason why we need to continue to hold this information.

Unless we have your explicit consent, we will only process special category data if one of the following applies:

- For archiving, research and statistical purposes;
- If it is in your vital interests and you are unable to provide consent e.g. if you are unconscious or do not have sufficient mental capacity to give your consent;
- If we are required to do so to establish, exercise or defend a legal claim; or
- If there is a substantial public interest to do so.

We monitor whether our electronic communications are received and opened. We also use your IP address to analyse the number of users who are accessing the IT systems at any one time and the types of device being used. This information helps us to make improvements to our systems and communications. We would not normally use IP addresses to identify individuals except if this is deemed to be necessary to investigate problems or potential misuse of the system.

Marketing

With your consent, we will use your email address to send you the latest news and information about LEAD Network that we believe may be of interest to you and in accordance with your stated preferences. We use our Member Platform (powered by Hivebrite) to send email communications.

By looking at your role and Member Profile as well as any other relevant personal information you have provided, we can identify news, events and services from LEAD Network that are most likely to be most relevant and will meet your needs as a Member.

When we send you marketing communications, we monitor whether you have opened the communication and clicked on any included links. This will enable us to track and analyse your level of engagement/interest in the communication we are sending you and will provide us with further insight on what type of communications are most of interest to you.

If you agree to marketing, and later change your mind, you can opt out at any point, by amending your preferences in your Member Profile. Alternatively, you can email operations@theleadnetwork.net. Please note that you may still receive communications for a short period after changing your preferences, but this will stop as soon as our systems are updated.
